CALL FOR PARTICIPATION

Do you believe that politics can help solve the world's biggest challenges? Do you think it is possible to improve political practices at the international level to enable collective action that cares for both the planet and humanity? Do you have ideas to contribute to this mission?

If you are between 18 and 40 years old and have political representation in a parliament or a collegial body in your city, if you are a leader in a government or a social movement, or if you represent your country in an international agency, we invite you to be part of a co-creation program with 99 other young leaders from around the world. Together, we will rethink global governance in the face of today's social, economic, and environmental challenges.

Submit your application to be part of this process!

ABOUT THE PROGRAM

New Humanity NGO, which has representation at the UN, together with the Politics for Unity Movement, are promoting this program. Its goal is to strengthen young politicians' participation in political advocacy at the global level through a two-year journey of reflection and collaborative action among socio-political leaders. The program seeks to build a global network of 600 young leaders from various continents.

ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA

- Young people between 18 and 40 years old. We welcome participants from diverse geographic, cultural, religious, social, and political backgrounds.
  - Proven experience in politics, government leadership, social movements, or representation in an international agency (politicians, public managers, social movement leaders, or party leaders).
  - Demonstrated commitment to fostering social and political transformation in one's own community or region.
  - Willingness to participate in both virtual and in-person program components.
  - Commitment to a two-year journey, applying acquired knowledge and skills, with an average weekly dedication of 3 hours.
